Barcın Höyük is a small mound near Yenişehir (Bursa province), where excavations by the Netherlands Institute in Turkey have taken place since 2005. The initial research goal of investigating a prehistoric settlement has been widened in 2007 and 2008 to include the exploration of a cemetery dating to the (Middle) Byzantine period. For the 2009 season a test trench is planned to locate the rural settlement to which the cemetery belonged. The Byzantine-period part of the Barcın Höyük Project is headed by Dr. Anestis Vasilakeris of Boğaziçi University, Istanbul.

The Avkat Archaeological Survey is a diachronic survey of the region surrounding the modern village of Beyözü (also known as Avkat, and identified as ancient Euchaita,) and seeks to understand the long-term changes in landscape use and socio-economic structures found in a rural Anatolian hinterland. The project seeks to integrate traditional archaeological survey work with other disciplines into a 100% digital project incorporating large datasets both of a traditional archaeological nature, as well as non-archaeological such as large volumes of text, climatic and palynological data, and vegetational and geological classifications derived from multispectral satellite imagery. It creates a web-accessible site with full access to datasets for a broad range of constituencies: www.princeton.edu/avkat.

The International Medieval Logistics Project is run jointly between Princeton and Birmingham/UK. This project uses Grid-aware distributed simulation techniques to model movement and sustainability of historic armies as well as to synthesise data for pre-modern landscapes and land-use. The study involves multiple simulations of transient populations (armies) moving within a digital environmental database. Alongside primary and secondary source material, the data will be used to interpret events related to warfare and resource distribution and consumption and to act as a control on the historical sources. See J. F.

Haldon, ed., General issues in the study of medieval logistics: sources, problems and methodologies (Leiden 2006); www.medievallogistics.bham.ac.uk.

The Digital Manzikert Project brings together historians, archaeologists and computer scientists to model the logistical arrangements relating to the campaign resulting in the battle of Manzikert (AD 1071). Given the significance attributed to these events and, ultimately, the collapse of Byzantine power regionally, the lack of consensus between historians on a range of key issues concerning manpower and resources, and the route taken by the Byzantine army to Manzikert, is profound. The project involves a fundamental re-analysis of the Manzikert campaign and will illustrate the use of Grid-aware distributed simulation techniques to model movement and sustainability of historic armies. A workshop presenting the progress achieved so far will take place on 27th-28th April 2010 at Princeton: www.vista.bham.ac.uk/VISTA_pdfs/medieval_warfare.pdf.

Survey in Zenonopolis in Isauria

The survey which has started in August 2008 aims primarily at the architectural documentation of the early Byzantine church on the plateau (yayla) of Zenonopolis/Büyükkarapınar (Karaman) and of other remains. The building on the yayla, which can be attributed to St. Socrates considering a 5th C. inscription found on the site, remained unknown to research so far. The ancient site – the birthplace of emperor Zeno – is occupied by the modern village below where the necropolis with rock cut sarcophagi is still to be seen and a series of architectural fragments can be identified as reused in the masonry of houses.

Das Projekt "Constantinopolis. Topographische, baugeschichtliche und wirtschaftsgeschichtliche Untersuchungen zu den italienischen Niederlassungen in Konstantinopel vor 1204", das seit 2005 von der Henkelstiftung unterstützt wird, soll nun im Zusammenwirken mit dem DAI (das schon in einer frühen Phase Träger des Projekts war) zu Ende geführt werden. Die Darstellung beruht in erster Linie auf einer Edition, Übersetzung und Kommentierung der lateinischen und griechischen Dokumente in den Staatsarchiven Pisa und Genua, sowie zu einem geringen Teil in Venedig, begleitet von Survey-Forschungen in Istanbul, die nun dank einer elektronischen Kartographierung der Stadt sehr erleichtert werden. Der Bearbeiter glaubt mit großer Sicherheit annehmen zu können, daß der den Genuesen geschenkte, einst der Botaneiates-Familie gehörende Palast identisch ist mit den byzantinischen Substruktionen im Acimusluk sokagi (Müller-Wiener, Bildlexikon S. 541). Weitere Untersuchungen dieses u.a. schon von K. Wulzinger im Jahrbuch des Deutschen Archäol. Instituts 1913 aufgenommenen Baues und neue photographische Aufnahmen der Innenräume sollen im Jahr 2008 erfolgen. Sondagen sind wegen der völligen modernen Überbauung des Areals unmöglich, doch soll Einsicht genommen werden in die Unterlagen der Denkmalbehörden zum Zeitpunkt dieser Baumaßnahmen. Eine Publikation aller Ergebnisse erfolgt in einem der Teilbände der Tabula Imperii Byzantini im Rahmen der Denkschriften der Österr. Akademie der Wissenschaften.
